

Bell companies operate an "essential facility", and should have to accommodate other ISP firms that wish to purchase access from them. This wholesale provisioning will stimulate competition and be of benefit to the consumers. To not do so would cripple the '96 Telecom Act. Chairman Powell: The monopolistic Bells haven't been known for their great customer service, and I fear how that might be worsened by limiting competition in the delivery of broadband services.